

Jazzy mood illustrates a still life of a gramophone, a turtle specimen and a metal sculpture.

Finished piece

This still life set up was inspired by a mellow and jazzy vibe that prestigious avant garde destinations like “The Battery” in San Francisco portray.

Photo reference

This old canvas has been re-purposed in order to conserve materials and funds.

Progress picture #1

Clearer progress pictures could have been taken but the process was too engrossing to pay mind.

Progress picture #2

The photo reference is still just a reference and choosing not to be tied to that, the painting was given more depth and a dynamic result.
